Notes:

- A stanza is similar to a paragraph in a book. One or two stanzas make up a verse in a song and usually give the details of the song. A song usually contains 2-3 stanzas. Sometimes stanzas contain rhyming elements like in poetry; rhyming words usually occur at the end of the lines but not always.
- The chorus is a section of lines that are generally the "catchy" part of the song. The chorus often contains the title of the song.
- Songs can be written to original music that you compose. Songs could also use the format and music of another song (i.e. a children's song, a popular song, or a religious song).
- Song should follow the following format:

Title
Verse 1 (1 or 2 stanzas)
Chorus
Verse 2 (1 or 2 stanzas)
Chorus
Bridge (optional)
